Peace & Light, Ms. Wendy
I love winter. I always have. The chill in the air, the snow on the ground and all the heavy winter clothes are just a few of my favorite things about our colder months. But I also love summer. The sun on my face, digging in the garden and trying to eat an ice cream cone before it melts are highlights for me.

The thing about winter, though, is it can make us look forward to summer -- a time when the long dark nights will melt away into the seemingly endless sunshine -- a time when the light overcomes the darkness. This is a great metaphor for our own journeys in this life.

There are times when our lives are filled with despair and it feels that God may not even be in it with us. When we are faced with the loss of a job, an illness or the death of a loved, we can feel burdened beyond hope. We can feel that there is little joy in our lives. But the snow will melt. The days will lengthen. The sun will again conquer the sky.

There is a tension in all of this. We know that our seasons ebb and flow from one to another. And even in the depths of winter, we know that summer will come. There are times in our lives when we feel in perfect harmony with God, like the Holy Spirit is sitting on our shoulder guiding our every action. At other times, we may feel like God is nowhere to be found. But our faith and our experience teach us that God is a constant and ever-present force in our lives. Even though the clouds of winter may hide the light of the sun from our eyes, the truth is that the sun is still there. It is shining brightly, even though we can't feel it's warmth.

God is much like the sun. God is always by our side. God is never absent even if there are clouds in the way. Our Bible teaches that there is a season for everything under heaven. That includes a season for melancholy, grief or simply feeling down in the dumps.

But the seasons will change. The summer will come. It always does. And God will again show up in our lives and make the Holy Spirit known to us.

So if you’ve been feeling down or blue, rest assured that our God will warm your life again. Much like the summer in Northeast Ohio, it will be unexpected and abundantly appreciated!

Pastor Jason

PS: I hope to see you all at Vacation Bible School – Adults and Kids alike!

We will host their group in Bartter Hall starting at 8pm with a bit of INTERFAITH EDUCATION followed by dinner. They will then serve some traditional foods at sunset (9:02pm) for us to share. Please contact the church office if you would like to come so we can let our friends know how much food to prepare. All ages welcome!
